SERMON ON THE COMMANDMENTS

Thirty-Four Persons "Jump on the Scales" and Make Profession of Faith at Last Night's Service Bringing Total to 426

The Second Baptist Church boys' and girls' Cadets attended the evangelistic service at the tent last evening in a body, occupying seats in the center, directly in front of the pulpit. They proved themselves to be as fine a company of little singers as have been heard there during the meetings, and took part in one of the most pleasing incidents that has occurred at either of the services. When asked to name their favorite song they shouted out in chorus, "Brighten the Corner Where You Are." The big choir and audience sang it and the Cadets— well, they certainly did sing it, too, and then they sang another, as only a bright, happy lot of healthy youngsters could sing it, the words of which were:

You've made Alexandria good and bright;
You've got the crowd a-coming to the tent every night—

We love to hear the choir and then to hear you sing;
And this little token to you we bring.

At the close of the song came other surprises, when little Misses Margaret Duncan and Pauline Mason, modestly walked upon the platform and presented Rev. Smith with a beautiful boquet of roses. A touch of pathos was given to the scene when the evangelist tenderly placed his arms about the two little girls as he accepted their floral tribute, and those near by faintly discerned the tears of joy which welled up into his eyes as he turned to sit down.

The echoes of the cheers given by the audience had hardly died away before another little girl, Miss Aimie Jeffers, mounted the platform and presented Miss Laura Hoagland, the popular pianist, with a handsome box of Martha Washington chocolates. There were more cheers, following which came Master Leonard Triplett with another box, containing a handkerchief and necktie, gifts for Prof. Cole, who has won a big place in the hearts of the children—little and big.

Remarks by Judge Barley.

Judge Louis C. Barley made a short address in which he referred to the work accomplished during the past four weeks. He said, in part: "I have seen the good women of the city leaving their daily duties and their homes to attend the prayer meetings; have seen the busy man leave his office and go and pray with the sick; have seen those who were spiritually blind made to see; have seen boys and girls and men and women who have made sin their idol, carve it out of their lives and give themselves to Jesus Christ; have seen the busy men and women who had no room for Christ open their hearts and let in the sunshine; have seen an Episcopalian leading a union prayer meeting; in fact have seen the whole atmosphere of the city changed, and these are only a few of the blessings vouchsafed to us during the past thirty days, all of which has been an inpiration to us to lift up the community and place it on a higher level. Brother Smith was invited here as our guest. He receives no compensation except what you may volutarily contribute the last day he is here."

Envelopes were then distributed through the audience by the ushers for the free-will offering which will be taken up for Rev. Smith the last day of the services.

Rev. Kirkley of the Methodist Protestan Church offered the prayer of invocation, the men's chorus choir sang, "Just Outside the Door," after which came the sermon.

"Thou Art Weighed in the Balance and Found Wanting"

In the 27th verse of the fifth chapter of Daniel may be found the words above quoted, which formed the text upon which the sermon of the evangelist was based last evening. He said substantially as here given:

Number Decisions.
Previously reported	390
Yesterday afternoon	2
Last night	34
Total	426

"Have wanted to preach from this text for months but haven't felt that I could until now. Pray for me. I want to get the greatest number of people to make the great start."

"New York city, is a great city, but if you and I had lived in Babylon in Belshazzar's time we wouldn't think New York was so much. Babylon was a grand, a beautiful city, but I can't tell you all of its glories. Belshazzar gave a feast; all the lords with their wives and concubines were there and I imagine I can see the flashing jewels and hear the rustle of fine silken gowns, the dancing girls, the wine drinking, revelry and debauchery! and amid it all the hand which appeared and wrote upon the wall the sentence which startled and filled them with an awe-stricken panic!

"And then they send for Daniel—just like you fools who send for the preacher when you're sick! Daniel came, but he could not be bought! And he told Belshazzar a few things, for you remember Belshazzar had taken the sacred vessels from the temple and desecrated them for his own vile use. Daniel told him his government would be divided and given to the Medes and Persians, and hardly had the words been spoken ere the soldiers of the invading army were upon them.

"You and I are weighed in God's balances! You may be a heavy-weight in your own or your wife's eyes, but in God's scales you fall far short! You'll find the weights in the 20th chapter of Exodus—Thou shalt not!

Notes and Announcements.

Union services will be held at the tent Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and a meeting for men only at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Included in the musical part of the program last evening was a duett by Prof. Cole and Miss Laura Hoagland which the large audience enjoyed greatly.

The Clarendon Baptist Church was represented at the service last night by a large delegation. "Jesus has you on his heart," was sung for their especial benefit.

A meeting for the children will be held at the tent tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at 3 o'clock. Special seats will be reserved for the children but everybody is invited to attend. It will be the last meeting to be held for the children.

The editor of the Gazette wishes to pay what he feels to be a deserved compliment to the splendid choir which has delighted and charmed the audiences nightly during the series of meetings. Made up of voices from all around the town, so to speak, it is a choir to which a city much larger than Alexandria might point with pride, and it should be a matter of no small degree of satisfaction to the individual members to know that they have been able to lend their aid in imparting so much to each service in the way of inspiring, soul-stirring music. That their efforts are appreciated will be conceded by all. And just here let us ask, why let the choir go down? Why could not Alexandria have a permanent chorus choir? Let those in the musical circles of the city think the suggestion over. The neucleus, the material, is here for a magnificent choir which would continue to honor Alexandria and bring entertainment and pleasure of a highly elevating character to its people. Again, we say, think it over.

There were 46 Alexandria homes open for prayer meeting this morning. Of these 45 have reported the attendance which totals 576. The meetings this morning are said to have been the most enthusiastic held so far. Some of the services lasted over an hour.

Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Pendleton of Warrenton are spending two weeks with Mrs. Pendleton's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Dawson, at the Theological Seminary, near this city.

Mrs. John Cochran of The Plains, Va., has returned to her home after a visit to Miss Cora L. Cochran in King street. Miss Cochran's niece, Miss Julia Cochran who has been visiting here left Tuesday for Bryn Mawr College where she will be a student this session.

The Wilfred Robinson and John Johnson, mentioned in the Gazette yesterday as having been arrested, were two soldiers, and not the Wilfred Robinson and John Johnson residing on North Washington street, this city, The soldiers gave the names as stated, however, which seems to have been a rather singular coincidence.

At the meeting of the Common Council last Tuesday night Mr. Lawler introduced a resolution allowing five per cent. discount on the 25 cents on every hundred dollars which must be paid to the city treasurer by December 1st. The resolution was referred to the finance and general laws committees. Many tax-payers have erroneously supposed this meant the regular tax of 180 cents upon the one hundred dollars collected by the city and payable October 1st. The above is written to set the people right in the matter.

Miss Lucy Uhler has returned to her home in north Washington street after visiting her cousins Mr. and Mrs. Charles Calvert Smoot, 3rd, at Virginia Beach.

Albert Smoot the youngest son of Noble S. Smith, fell in the school yard Tuesday and broke his right arm. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital where it was set by Dr. Klipstein and Powell.

The services of Agudas Achin congregation in Sarepta Hall, this morning, were largely attended. This is the last of the local celebrations of the Jewish New Year, the observance of which will close for those of the Orthodox faith tonight at sunset. That of the members of the Reformed faith closed at the same hour last night.

ARMOR PLANT ACTIVITIES

Optimism, determination, painstaking thought and willingness to work these, and a great many other worthwhile qualities were apparent among the men composing the general committee of the Armor-Plate-Plant-to-Alexandria movement at the meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms yesterday afternoon. And because 'by thunder' as one of the men remarked, 'we're not going to let anyone else steal our thunder' the details of the offer which will be presented to Secretary Daniels on Tuesday morning, October 10, are not going to be made public until after the hearing.

Henry K. Field presided over the meeting and Kenneth W. Ogden officiated as secretary. The preliminary brief had been prepared by H. B. Harlow, R. E. Knight, of the Retail Merchants Association, and James T. Preston, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Additions to committees already named were James R. Caton, committee on statistics, and the newspaper men of Alexandria to that of publicity.

Present at the meeting were: Benjamin Abramson, Morton B. Apperson, Samuel Bendheim, W. W. Ballenger, Capt. Albert Bryan, C. S. Taylor Burke, Leopold Ruben, J. Fred Birrell, James M. Duncan, Emanuel E. Downham, Louis N. Duffey, Michael T. Dwyer, H. K. Field, M. B. Harlow, Edwin B. Hard, John W. May, Judge C. E. Nicol, Mr. Preston, Mr. Knight, Wallace Lindsay, Mr. Ogden, R. L. Payne, William B. Smoot, sr., William A. Smoot jr, Charles B. Swan, Dr. William M. Smith, Joseph E. Schwarzmann, C. J. W. Summers, R. A. Steele, E. F. Ticer, George E. Warfield, and R. B. THE RAMBLER.

Paragraphic Points Picked up by Our Man on the Street.

I went into a small grocery to make a purchase the other day, hence the following:

"How much are they?" The stout over-dressed woman with hair that shrieked into my sensitiveness, eyed the little box of sardines dubiously yet haughtily as if purchasing a grand piano.

"Fifteen cents, Madam," replied the grocer who looked a little too well-fed and who wore one of those patent smiles.

"But I want imported sardines", she retorted, a trifle indignantly, because it seemed that the grocer had taken her for some common sort of customer.

"Ah, Beg pardon, Madam," said the grocer. He put the little package of Maine herrings back in its place and took another can from another shelf. "These are what you want. They are thirty cents a can." He waited with what he conceived to be an intelligent look.

"Very well," retorted the grand dame with a shade of warmth in her voice, "You may wrap them up."

When she had gone the grocer put his tongue in his cheek, The smile evaporated when I asked him for a penny box of matches. I overheard him say to his young assistant man-of-all-work. "Whadda you know about that? The can she took was the same price, but it had another kind of lable on it."

Dear, dear old game of bunk! Why will we insist, so many of us, in not being just natural. I'm a little ashamed to confess it, but I trailed the grand dame home. I passed her house yesterday again and I saw her at the door in a pair of squashy shoes, all run-down at the heels, and a calico wrapper that was, I must confess it, really very, very grimey. Aren't we the queerest sort of animals?—some of us.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO

If You Were Running Alexandria?

"What would you do if you were running Alexandria?"

"I'd DO the things I'm trying to do as a merchant, a police commissioner, and a private citizen."

The Gazette representative, who now spoke with Robert E. Knight for the first time had been prepared by what he had heard to meet a character out of the common mould.

The sign on the windows of his establishment on King Street, which reads "We sell a little something of most everything," had prepared the G. R. for something unusual. Mr. Knight sat behind a desk in a corner of the big room on the second floor of his place. On the journey through the store a little something of most everything was encountered. The only things not in evidence were an elephant or two, some submarines and a flying machine. However, to be serious, this is what Mr. Knight would do if he were runnng Alexandria:

"First, I would do what I've been trying to do as a Police Commissioner—make Alexandria a clean town for my children and other people's children to live in. I'd do away with all disorderly places that help to ruin men and form within them habits that make them bad citizens.

Next I'd adopt a broad policy toward the outside world that would induce the coming here of business interests. I would go out and find men who want sites for their industries and bring them here at my own expense and offer them free ground and light taxes. I'd be prepared to make sacrifices in the beginning in order that I might profit in the end.

The first thing a business man proposing to come here would investigate would be the desirability of the proposed site. Then he would consider the taxation and the labor situation. I would see to it that these conditions were as nearly perfect as they could be. And I would have helped toward that end by doing what I alluded to first—by making a clean city.

You can tell that Mr. Knight is a 'Daddy.' Photographs on his desk, and other things, tell the story within a moment or two of your meeting him. He told the G. R. things about 'Daddyism' that would make good reading, but one may not break con-

ANNE LEE MEMORIAL HOME OPENS

A NOTABLE ADDITION TO CITY'S ACTIVITIES

Board of Governors Have Accomplished the Seemingly impossible in splendid Renovation of Old Herbert Family Home Lapsed Into Ruinous Condition

If for no other reason, one must feel grateful to the members of the Seventeenth, Va., Chapter, U. D. C., for the Colonial portico and entrance they have added to the old Herbert home. It is exceedingly beautiful. And as one puts one's hand to the old brass knocker, presented by Miss Mitty Herbert, the imagination is transported, willy-nilly, back to ye olden time. The entrance hall is in artistic keeping with the exterior. And the taste which characterises the arrangement of the approaches to the Home, refurbished as a Memorial to Anne Lee, mother of Virginia's great soldier and gentleman, Robert E. Lee, is evident also in all those other divisions of the Home which have been completed.

In addition to the sentiment which has been turned to so splendidly practical a use, the Home is also a monument to the energy of the men and women who compose the Board of Governors.

Were it not for the fact that some of the upper rooms and basement are yet as they were when the Board purchased the property, one could not believe that it could have fallen into so bad a condition. In these unfinished rooms the plaster has fallen away from the ribs of lathes in great cakes. The floors are warped and great open spaces gape in them. It must indeed have been a depressing place to visit.

But now, what has happened? In the first place the Home today buzzes with life and animation. On a table in the large front room, designed to be used as a dining room, are many donations of groceries and other useful things. But for the weather, said Mrs. Lycurgus E. Uhler, Chairman of the Finance Committee, the receipts would have been much greater, but there is no time set for an end to the giving, and it is expected that tomorrow will be productive of a harvest of good things.

On the ground floor is a beautifully furnished reception room which is the gift also of the women of the Seventeenth Chapter who created the portico. A notable feature of this room as all others in the house is the exquisite color scheme. The effect is restful and soothing—just what it should be, in fact, in view of these who are to inhabit them.

On the second floor are six rooms. One of these was furnished by Mrs. Uhler as a Memorial to her mother and father, Susan Alice and Edward Stabler Hough. Leopold Ruben made another delightfully habitable in memory of his parents, Amelia and Morris Ruben. Mrs. Harry Peyton Wilson, of Holland Hall, furnished still another of these rooms, as did also the members of Willard Union, W. C. T. U.

On this floor also are two magnificently appointed, white, gleaming bath-rooms of which the fittings were donated by William Desmond, in memoriam of his father and mother, Maurice and Honoria Desmond. The linoleum which covers the floor of these was given by Mrs. John M. Reed, and Mr. Swan, of Swan Brothers.

On this floor also is a large room furnished jointly by Mrs. Ben Wheatley and Mr. Frank Michelbach. The sixth room was made habitable by the Board of Governors.

On the main floor is a room which the Boy Scouts of Alexandria have made themselves responsible for. They have insisted, however, that it shall be occupied by an old man. There are several other rooms in the basement which it is hoped will be provided for by other philanthropic persons. If this is done it is contemplated to use these for the housing of old men also.

On the top floor there is also ample opportunity to help. One of the front rooms is being put into shape by Judge Louis C. Barley and the Rev. Edward F. Kirkley. Among other contributors is Mrs. Thomas Fisher who gave the fine rug which adds so greatly to the attractiveness of the dining room, in addition to household appliances, too numerous to mention.

As has been stated, the transformation of this historic old Home, sold to the Board of Managers for $1,500, is little short of a miracle. Today, as it stands, with the expenditure of little more than the purchase price, its valuation can not be little less than $10,000. It is a striking instance of a commingling of charity and commonsense.

Already some of the tenants have moved into what must prove a pleasant home. The matron or superintendent—which it is?—has also arrived. She is Miss Florence Arnold, who comes here from Elmira, N. Y., where she was in charge of the Florence Bullock Memorial Home.

It is announced by the Board of Managers, that in the near future the Gazette will publish a complete list of all those who have helped to make the Home possible whether by donations, labor, or other help.

LOST—AN ISLAND.

Goose Egg Island Disappears From The Potomac

Charles Dean has been given the work of making a new hull for the Dredge No. 3, belonging to the Columbia Granite and Dredging Company, which capsized in the mouth of the Oxon two weeks ago. When Mr. Dean has completed his work the machinery from the old hull just recently raised, will be transferred to the new one.

The Dredge is one of the oldest on the river and is a remnant of a fleet that worked on the Potomac twenty years ago. It has been recently used to get sand and gravel for the company which owns it, for building purposes in Washington. At the present time three other such machines are in operation across the river from Alexandria. As a result of this work a channel has been formed on the Maryland side of the river which is deep enough to allow heavy draught tug boats to approach within a few yards of shore. Should there ever be occasion to restore the ferry service between Alexandria and Maryland, it will be found that there is plenty of water. Old-time inhabitants of the city will remember the difficulty of getting the old 'Virginia' across even though she was what used to be termed a 'flattie.' It is interesting to note also that during the dredging 'Goose Egg Island' has entirely disappeared.

CHRISTIAN UNITY.

In every community in which there is a revival in progress there is always much thought and consequent talk of Christian Unity. But unity, involving a real union of all the protestant sect is merely a vain dream. Denominationalism is a matter of psychological differences. Just as there will always be men who want their beef cooked well-done, and others who like it rare, so will there ever be a difference of opinion between men as to how they shall worship their God.

There are today 34 divisions of the protestant faith in America. These are growing in number even as the broader-minded christians are gaining in the spirit of the true christian—of whatever sort—in a coming together for the common good; working together for civic and community betterment. This spirit is killing the old-time denominational rivalry. Souls rather than statistics, are the first aim of the greater majority of the church bodies, and their members are coming to see that the making of one strong, effective church where formerly there were 2 or 3 weak ones, is more truly work for the Master than the mere adding of another church to the roll.

NOT EASILY ALARMED.

A preacher in Alexandria was once heard to remark that a true Christian is incapable of panic. This was brought to mind last night while the large assemblage in the gospel tent was listening to the inspiring services held there. There was but little stir when the fire bells rang out, about 8 o'clock. Two or three young people in the northern end of the tent, crept out, but they soon returned. The great mass, however, was absorbed in the services and showed no uneasiness, although many had little ones at home.

One week ago tonight there was another scene which was suggestive. While Rev. Gypsy Smith, was in the most interesting part of his discourse on Paul's voyage from Caeserea to Rome, when the ship upon which he embarked was wrecked by a euroclydon, a high wind began to blow, the rain fell in torrents while lightning flashed and thunder rolled. The congregation of the audience remained seated and there was no stampde as had been feared.

THE ARMOR PLANT

The Gazette learns that very quietly, yet insistently, there is developing in Washington, strong opposition to the movement to bring the government Armor plant to that city. We have not heard much of it for the reason that the Washington newspapers do not care to fly in the face of the energetic business men who are behind the movement.

A very respectable percentage of Washingtonians are opposed to making the capital into an industrial center. And rightly so. And these, including in their ranks many men of large influence, are throwing their support to Alexandria. This can be stated upon very excellent authority.

During the past few days the chances of Alexandria have vastly improved. If our people all pull together, and pull hard, the outlook is bright. And, very naturally, when all the Washingtonians realize that they really have no chance, they will turn in and endorse the claims of this city.

THE COST OF LIVING

We do not believe that the high cost of living is due to the Underwood Tariff. A little reflection assures us that the vast majority of the commodities which have advanced most in price of late are those which do not need protection for the reason that their manufacturers have little or no competition abroad.

For example, clothing worn by ordinary people is much cheaper than it was four years ago, whereas beef is infinitely more dear. The prices of milk and bread are now skyrocketing. Think for youself and you will find many similar examples.

The truth is that somewhere lies a great fault. This is in the manipulation of foodstuffs and all the other staples of life. Wheat today is selling at a very high price—fifty per cent higher than this time last year. But a great majority of the farmers who grew it sold their crops for little more than a dollar a bushel, and so it goes all the way down the line of stuffs produced by the American farmer.

We do not see any farmers or small retailers growing inordinately wealthy. They have to everlastingly hustle to make both ends meet, as they did in days of yore; if not more so. What is the answer?

It is the men who handle the staples of life in huge quantities who are growing inordinately rich. They can be curbed only by the federal government. The necessities of life must be removed from the stock markets. The government must establish bureaus of centers of distribution in various sections of the country. Through some such plan alone can come relief. And the government should set about doing something of this sort promptly. Such regulation as has hitherto existed has been less than a joke.

GOOD ROADS TO ALEXANDRIA

It was an ancient saying that all roads lead to Rome, and a number of good roads now lead to Alexandria, while others are in process of construction. Our port can be reached by ships from any part of the world, and a number of roads stretch out fan-shaped to the south, west, northwest and north and apart from these the trains of seven railroads pass through Alexandria daily.

While considerable street improvement has been made during the past few years, the roads leading to this city have recently received much attention.

It is no longer necessary for our rural neighbors to bury their vehicles to the hubs when coming here.

The road to Hunting creek (Patrick street extended) has been made into a modern highway, as has also a large stretch of the West End (Duke street extended) road. The unsightly and deep gulleys which a short time ago existed in this part of our annexed territory are rapidly disappearing, a sewer has been constructed as far west as the overhead bridge at a point where the Drovers' Rest conducted by the late Samuel Catts, formerly stood, a large stretch of the road has been substantially improved and the highway running east into the city proper is being constructed after the order of the Russell Road in Rosemont.

The old Leesburg Turnpike (Shooter's Hill, or King street extended) is receiving similar teratment. A large stretch of this highway has been improved and before the snow begins to fly it is expected that the work will have been extended to Jannel's Lane, the extreme western limit of larger Alexandria.

These improved highways bring people from every section of the United States to Alexandria, many tourists passing through the city in automobiles to Mount Vernon daily.

NOEL ON THE STAND

He told the jury that he had been married for 20 years, and that he had five children. His wife, he said, was sent to the Eastern State Hospital two years ago, and that she was now on a furlough, and that his children were with their grandfather in Maryland. He said he first met Mrs. Robertson in the drug store here, of which he had been manager for two years. Mrs. Robertson, the witness said, came into the store and requested him to phone to a friend for her, and that their acquaintance grew from that time. Noel testified that he was very fond of Mrs. Robertson, and that he had rented a dwelling for her and had given her clothes and provisions for herself and child. He also gave her a diamond ring, he said, his gifts, including furniture, amounting to about $2,000.

On the afternoon of the murder, the witness said, he and Mrs. Robertson had a quarrel, growing out of the visit to her of another man. In the quarrel, Noel alleged, Mrs. Robertson attacked him with a knife, and in the scuffle that followed a pistol which he had in his hand was discharged and Mrs. Robertson was killed. Noel could not say who pulled the trigger. The case probably will go to the jury this afternoon.

RELIEVED THROUGH "MASTER MEDICINE"

Berkley Inspector Follows In Path of Others and Praises New Medicine.

Mr. J. A. McKimmey of Berkley, Norfolk, Va., a man whose word cannot be doubted said in regard to his illness: "I suffered from catarrh of the head and stomach. I had a wheezing condition in my throat and my head was all stopped up. Either one or the other of my nostrels were stopped up and I had headaches for months. I tried Tanlac because it was praised so highly. Now neither my head, nose or throat give me any trouble. Before taking Tanlac my limbs felt as if they were iron they were so heavy. Now I am feeling better in every way. If all who are sick would try this wonderful medicine everyone would be healthy."

Thousands have recommended Tanlac. Why won't it help you? Give it a trial, it can be secured of the Leadbeater Drug Corporation in Alexandria or of G. T. Mankin and Co., Falls Church.

Modernized Chiropractic has put more so-called Incurable Diseases on the list of curables than any other drugless method known.

When applied to the study of the nature, cause and elimination of disease, it becomes a science and philosophy which is able to locate and analyze, unerringly, the cause of disease, and provides the best method known at the present time for removing the cause.

The basic principles of Chiropratic are in no way at variance with the established facts of Anatomy and Physiology, the two branches of medical science which are the foundation of all others.

ASSAULT WITH A STICK

Young Man Seriously Injures Father-in-Law Last Night on Fairfax Street.

"I'm shot!" exclaimed Captain Frank Dixon about eight o'clock last night, and in less time than it takes to tell it a large crowd rushed to Fairfax street, between Cameron and Queen. Some one, not hearing the words distinctly, supposed an alarm of fire had been sounded, and almost immediately the bells began to ring. It was assumed that a fire was raging near where the crowd had assembled, but upon investigation, it was seen that Captain Dixon had been assaulted and blood was flowing freely down his coat and shirt. In the meantime Henry Dixon, his son, was fighting with Charles Quayle, a young one-legged man, who had married Dixon's daughter.

Officer Garvey soon reached the scene, and having separated Henry Dixon and the latter's brother-in-law, arrested Quayle and conducted Dixon to the station house. Doctor T. M. Jones was summoned who rendered surgical assistance to the wounded man, taking two stitches in his scalp.

The case was aired in the Police Court this morning. Robinson Moncure appeared in behalf of Dixon, and H. Noel Garner represented Quayle. After Officer Garvey had told what he knew about the affair, Dixon testified. He said he was sitting upon his doorstep. He had intended to go to the corner of King and Royal streets for the purpose of listening to the services conducted by the Salvation Army, when Quayle came along and wantonly assaulted him, delivering several blows with a stick upon his head. The report of the blows were so sharp that he at first supposed he had been shot. He said he had no words with his son-in-law, and alleged that the assault was unprovoked.

Henry Dixon, son of the injured man, then took the stand. His testimoney in the main corroborated that of his father. He grappled with the assailant after his father had been struck. Witness said he never saw Quayle walk with a cane before.

Quayle's wife also testified that she never saw her husband walk with a cane. After queries had been propounded the witnesses by the lawyers, Quayle took the stand. He said he had earlier in the night attended the Salvation Army meeting, after which he started for Dean's shipyard in the extreme northeastern section of the city. In passing on Fairfax street between Cameron and Queen, he saw a man sitting on a doorstep talking with another man. He heard one of them say "I'll get him," and when he drew near he thought one of the men started to rise. Supposing he was the object of his vengeance he used his stick upon the man. He alleged that he did not know it was Captain Dixon, and said he had no reason to attack him and would not, had he recognized him.

Quayle's wife is suing for a divorce. She has one child.

CITY'S NIGHT OF TERROR

Twenty Years Ago a Tornado Struck Alexandria, Demolishing Buildings and Crushing out Lives

Late on the night of September 29, 1896, a high wind swept over this city and neighborhood, unroofing many buildings, demolishing others, uprooting trees and causing other damage. An old citizen residing on Cameron street was killed in his home, which was crushed by the falling chimney and wall of an adjoining house, and a woman lost her life in her home in the extreme northwestern section of the city by the blowing in of a wall.

The weather had been threatening during the day and early in the night. The wind then was from the northwest and was coming at times in heavy flaws. The barometer was down to 29, which augured a meteorological disturbance. The wind later began to veer, blowing from the east and subsequently from the southeast and south. The disturbance began when it reached the latter point of the compass. The gusts were the heaviest ever witnessed by the oldest inhabitants, and chimneys toppled, walls were blown in, tin roofs sailed through the air, trees were falling, and branches were being snapped from others, telegraph and telephone poles were being prostrated, while the streets had become dangerous to pedestrians from live wires which had fallen in all thoroughfares. The wires of the electric railways were spitting fire, dogs were howling and children who had been awakened from sleep by terror-stricken parents clung to the latter.

During this period of terror, when it was impossible to run trains or make telephone connections, a citizen, with the spirit of Paul Devere, ran almost the entire way to the Four-mile run power house and had the electric current cut off.

The wind later, to the relief of every one, began to change to the southwest, when a brilliant planet appeared and the storm was over, although many people were afraid to seek their beds and suffered from anxiety and nervousness the remainder of the night.

It took a long time to replace roofs upon houses and to clean up the debris. A new brick, church owned by colored people, in the northwestern section of the city was demolished, only the tower remaining.

CAME BACK AND GOT THEM.

Flemington, N. J., Sept. 29 — When thieves entered his hen roost recently and stole all but four of his fine flock, Edward McAvoy, a retired sergeant of the United States Marine Corps, who operates a chicken farm near here, posted a bill on his front gate defying the thief to come back sometime and get the four he had "inadvertently overlooked."

Last night the thief, or thieves, carried off the quartette of hens that had been left behind on the initial excursion.

Chronic Dysentery.

"An old gentleman of this town who was almost at the point of death with chronic dysentery some time ago and had given up all hope of recovery was induced to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. One dose stopped the discharge, and after taking a few more doses he was completely cured," writes J. L. Baer, West Manchester, Pa. "Many residents of Baer's [illegible] to the truth of the [illegible] of the old gentleman's condition." Obtainable everywhere.

BREAD WILL NOT RISE

But Milk Will Cost one Cent Per Pint More After Sunday Next October 1st.

After Sunday a majority of the people of Alexandria will have to pay one cent a pint more for their milk, and they have been exercised by continual rumors to the effect that the price of bread would also mount in the near future.

The Gazette this morning sent a representative to interview a number of the local bakers on the subject and finds that the matter of a rise has not even been seriously discussed by them, even though the price of all the raw material used has greatly increased during the past year or two.

Smith Williams, local manager of the Havenner Baking company, identified with the Corby Bakery, says that there is no probability that his company, one of the largest in this section of the country, will increase prices in the near future at least.

Alexandria, therefore, is fortunate in this respect. In practically every other state people are being confronted with a serious increase of cost of one of the principals of their diet.

It is true also that the smaller bakers particularly are facing a perilous time. It is but fair to them to state the facts in the event that necessity forces them to raise their prices. Within two years flour has increased nearly fifty per cent; sugar eighty-two per cent lard ten per cent; cottoseed oil, ninety per cent; gasoline (for power) 80 per cent, and so on. At the best there was but a narrow margin of profit on bread or cake.

Various reasons for the tremendous advance of the price of flour are given. The wheat crop for this year is stated by the government to be only 654 millions of bushels, a decrease of 358 millions of bushels from the crop last year. The shortage of crop in Canada is said to approximate nearly 200 millions of bushels.

On the other hand it must be remembered that there yet remains in the granaries of many of the farmers, and the larger dealers, the crops of 1915 and even 1914. It has been estimated that fully one-half of the crops of these years has not yet passed into the hands which grind it into flour. It will, therefore, be seen that skyrocketing of prices of flour is as much due to speculation as to any other cause.

There is just now a wide-spread movement looking toward governmental action to place an embargo upon the exportation of winter wheat or flour. Yesterday it was stated authoritatively that the exports of these commodities are this year much smaller than has been the case for many years.

Officials of the Corby Bakery, Karl Fuchs, Henry A. Schlichting, and others, also declare that no steps have been taken to increase the price of any of their bakery products, although all feel that they are getting a very narrow margin of profit for their labor.

The Japanese Embassy flatly denies a statement attributing to the embassey the view that after the European war Japan will renew her fight for emigration to this country.

SERMON ON COMMANDMENTS.

"Oh, men! the lust for gold is one of the damning sins of the age! How people lie for it! Steal for it! And then some make society their god and make God play second fiddle to it. If some of you passed away tonight they could pile on your casket your cards, eye-brow pencils and powder puffs and tell the story of your life! How rotten some society is today! Newspaper men are writing the copy you want. If a minister makes a single mistake the papers from here to San Francisco tell it the next morning.

"Step into the scales and put on the weight, Thou shalt not steal! How do you show up? And another weight — Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord in vain. All some men can do is to stand on the corner and blaspheme! The other night a boy only four years old refused to drink out of a cup which was being used by other boys, and said, 'damn it, think I will drink after those kids!' You think you can swear and blaspheme—it's a sign of a rotten character!

"Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy, is another weight. America's greatness in the past has been her high regard for the Sabbath. You better look out, Alexandria, you don't appear to regard the Sabbath very high! Do you keep open on the Sabbath? How much do you weigh? You shut up the groceries and allow drugstores to be open. Oh yes, I know we need medicine, but why permit the sale of luxuries?

"Hope you men will have backbone enough to put men in office who will stop Sunday baseball!

"Another weight—Honor thy father and mother! I wouldn't wipe my feet on the young man who will speak of his mother as the old woman! Do you remember how President McKinley turned and kissed his mother just after he had been inaugurated? How he kept in touch with her while she was ill in Canton, Ohio, and he held in Washington by the nation's business? Some of your mothers would have a better home but for sacrifices made for you—and you wretch! You sneer at and call her 'the old woman'? Jump into the scales and let's see how much you weigh tonight!

"Thou shalt not kill! Wonder if you're true to your marriage vows? You can kill a wife by inches by being untrue—by a bitter tongue. How much do you weigh?

"Thou shalt not commit adultry! No crime before God is so black as that, and no country where it's so prevalent as in the United States! Not guilty? Read Matthew 5th and 28th. Christ says He will not only hold us responsible for the act but the thought! How much do you weigh?

"Thou shalt not steal! A man steals when he fails to give proper return for what he takes! The merchant is a thief who sells cotton for wool; a man is a thief who doesn't pay carfare because the conductor doesn't happen to see him.

"Wish I had time to preach on your card parties. (Here he told a story of a young man who landed in Auburn prison through gambling and who sent his mother's picture back to her with the message: 'tell her, damn her, that I never want to see her again. She taught me to play cards').

"Parlors where cards are played are kindergartens of gambling! I have more respect for the gambler who hangs out his sign than for mothers who permit such things in their homes! Dancing, card-playing women do more damage than all the saloons in Alexandria!

"Let's put those commandments in the scales and then jump in and see how much we weigh! If you won't take the ten commandments as the standard of right living you ought to be kicked out of Alexandria!

"Yes, I've sinned, but I'll jump in on the other side of the scales, but not alone! I'll take the Son of God with me! Will you step in? Come on".

The invitation was given and responded to by 34 who went to the platform.

Meeting for Women Held Yesterday

Rev. Gypsy Smith, jr., preached to about two thousand ladies yesterday afternoon. No men were present except himself and Prof. Cole who led the singing. Miss Hoagland sang, "I Love the Name of Jesus."

Rev. Smith took for his text Gal. 6-7. In the course of the sermon he said:

It is true, Washington is the capital of the United States, but the real capitol is not in any city, rather in your own home. What you are, your home will be; what your home is, your city will be, and what your city is, the world will be."

"God will not stand at the door and knock forever, We must answer when He calls. Some of you say 'I don't need God and I don't need Christ,' but the time will come when you will need Him.

"Some of you may pretend to be Christians, but you can't fool God for one minute. His eye is never closed and he knows you through and through, and He is not going to stop his plans of the universe because you think there should be no hereafter.

"There comes a time to everyone of us when the end is near, but that will be too late to make a choice. Now is the time to decide! God has given us a mind for pure things, not for impure thoughts; and a heart for love, not for hate. If you sow impure thoughts and hatred you must expect that in return. God pity you if you sow, in the light of the twentieth century, to your own hurt, for you'll reap exactly what you sow.

"One little boy, who gave his heart to Christ the Sunday afternoon the Sunday Schools were here in a body, went home and told his mother of it and she ridiculed him. It would be a proper punishment for her if he were to turn out a bleary-eyed fool Why, I've seen some homes in Alexandria in which a step-mother would be more welcome than God. Some of you take more stock in your dogs and cats than you do in your children!

"If you are living for society or dress, or applause, get it! But God help you when it's gone! God can and will forgive anything I may do, if I ask Him to, but nature will not. Girls, if you lower yourselves, don't blame the man, for he will give you just exactly as much respect as you demand. A few days ago a man on the street remarked 'it used to be an easy thing to 'pick-up' a girl on the street, but after these meetings are over we won't be able to find any."

"If you sin everybody who loves and respects you will have to bear the shame, and you will not be the only one to suffer. Your children will have to reap what you have sown. You can't fool with sin without paying for it. God wishes you to be the finest, strongest and most winsome women you can make of yourselves. But you may make shipwrecks of your lives just as many others, equally as sweet and pretty as you are, have done, if you do not take Christ. Only He can help you.

Two ladies responded to the invitation.

fidence. However, there was one thing that should prove so valuable to many others, that Mr. Knight will pardon the little innovation, the G. R. feels assured.

It is one of his firm beliefs that the greatest need of the Southland is of educated men and women. He has eight children of his own, and he naturally thinks they are the biggest kind of a legacy he can leave to posterity, and, he is right.

At the birth of each one of these youngsters Mr. Knight took out an endowment policy due to mature at that crucial time when the expense of education must be seriously considered. Three of his sons have passed through the University of Virginia and are rendering a good account of themselves in the world, while the others will follow them in due course.

As to the commercial future of the South Mr. Knight is an optimist of the brightest hue. There was a time, he admits, when the men below the Mason and Dixon's line were not able to compete with the business men who flocked south after the war. But that day has passed and largely as a result of up-to-date educational methods. The business men of the South today tip their hats only to superior acumen, and it is rarely that they find it.

Alexandria has labored under a number of handicaps, Mr. Knight admits, and since he has lived here all his life he ought to know. One of these is that in the days following the war Alexandrians became afflicted with a sort of business paralysis, as the result of a number of rather disastrous investments. They were several times, to use the parlance, badly 'stung'. But the memory of these things is passing and there is every reason to believe, according to Mr. Knight, that the future will be a bright one, commercially, and in every other way. He is firm in the belief that Alexandria possesses all the advantages of many other cities which are prospering more greatly than she is, and, in addition, many others. The nearness to the North; the passage to deep water, affording the possibility of playing both ends against the middle in the transportation game by using water transportation as a means of keeping the railroads good, and vice versa—all these things and many others familiar to most public-spirited Alexandrians, Mr. Knight touched upon with the rapid-fire thinking of a man who is accustomed, in his own business, to handle a great variety of details.

Looking in from the outside Mr. Knight impresses one as an idealist who is coated with a pretty thick layer of business sagacity, but not so thickly, however, that the idealism does not pop its head out very frequently even in business dealings.

He's a whole lot older than he looks, has luminous brown eyes that look right into your own, a head that's shaped like that of 'Bobby' Burns and a spare, active frame that lets him cover a lot of ground in a little time. And you can understand, too, why a lot of people hereabouts call him 'Bob'. He's a friendly person is Robert E. Knight. And all that he's got he dug out of little old terra firma himself.

Get Rid of That Miserable Feeling.

There are few diseases that make one feel more miserable than a disordered stomach. Mrs. A. Wingale, Gorham, N. Y., writes: "I began using Chamberlain's Tablets about five years ago. At that time I was having a great deal of trouble with my stomach. I suffered great distress due to indigestion and constipation. Nothing did me much good until I got Chamberlain's Tablets." Obtainable everywhere.

An automobile accident, resulting in painful injuries to a number of passengers, occurred near Oakton, Fairfax county, a few days ago. A Ford machine, driven by Willie Swetnam, turned over while making a sharp turn. Two of the occupants were caught under the machine. Mr. Swetnam's shoulder was dislocated; Miss Virginia Richardson had one of her ears badly cut; Miss Margaret Farr had a badly sprained foot; Mr. Lewis Jones received severe bruises about his face, involving his right eye, and Miss Madaliene Coe received slight bruises.
